

Welcome from the Wyoming Rural Development Council!

Wyoming Rural Development Council

The Wyoming Rural Development Council (WRDC) is a collaborative public/private partnership that brings together six partner groups: local/regional government, state government, federal government, tribal government, non-profit organizations and private sector individuals and organizations.

WRDC is governed by a Steering Committee representing the six partner groups. The Steering Committee as well as the Council membership has established the following goals for the WRDC:

- Assist rural communities in visioning and strategic planning.
- Serve as a resource for assisting communities in finding and obtaining grants for rural projects.
- Serve and be recognized as a neutral forum for identification and resolution of multi-jurisdictional issues.
- Promote, through education, the understanding of the needs, values,

The Council seeks to assist rural Wyoming communities with their needs and development efforts by matching the technical and financial resources of federal, state, and local governments and the private sector with local development efforts.

Community Assessment Program

The Community Assessment Program in Wyoming began in the year 2000 and is designed to help communities develop locally conceived and driven development strategies.

The community assessment program helps communities and counties develop a “big picture” objective assessment of their challenges and opportunities, socially, economically and environmentally.

Today, the WRDC has facilitated community assessments in 78 Wyoming communities and two counties. In addition, the WRDC has created a network of over 375 trained team members that volunteer their time to Wyoming communities on these assessments.

Many Wyoming communities have used this report to begin a plan of action for their community, often with amazing success. To learn more about how communities have effectively used this process to create a plan and implement objectives and goals, take a look at the, Five Year Community Assessment Synopsis entitled, “Empowering Rural Communities to Build Their Own Future,” which is available on our website.

Process for the Development of the Washakie County Report

Process

The Wyoming Rural Development Council (WRDC) has provided a Resource Team to assist, Wyoming in evaluating the community's assets and liabilities and in developing suggestions for improving the environment, social and economic future of Washakie County.

Washakie County requested a community assessment from the Wyoming Rural Development Council. Mary Grace Strauch served as the community contact and took the lead in agenda development, logistics and publicity in town for the assessment. Resource team members were selected to visit, interview citizens, business and community leaders; and develop a plan of recommended action for the town. The team members were carefully selected based on their fields of expertise that Superior officials indicated would be needed to respond to the problem areas identified.

The Resource Team toured the county and interviewed approximately 203 people over a three-day period from April 10-12, 2007. The team interviewed representatives from the following segments of the county: Retail, Business, Banking, Finance; City, County, Law Enforcement, Officials; Healthcare; Utilities, Energy, Industry; Youth, Youth Programs, Education; Agriculture; State and Federal; Civic Clubs, Churches, Social Services; Senior Citizens and both communities of Ten Sleep and Worland.

Each participant was asked to respond to three questions designed to begin communication and discussion and to serve as a basis for developing the action plan. The three questions were:

- ❑ What do you think are the major problems and challenges in Washakie County?
- ❑ What do you think are the major strengths and assets in Washakie County?
- ❑ What projects would you like to see completed in two, five ten and twenty years in Washakie County?

Upon completion of the interviews, the team met to compare notes and share comments following the three days of intense study. The team then agreed that each team member would carefully analyze what was said, synthesize what they heard with their knowledge of programs and resources, prepare their notes and suggestions, and forward these items to be combined into WRDC's final report for Washakie County.

The oral report was presented to the people of Washakie County on April 12, 2007 and many of the citizens of Washakie County who participated in the interviews attended.

Report Development

Upon completion of the interviews, the team met to compare notes and share comments following the two days of intense study. The team then agreed that each team member would carefully analyze what was said, synthesize what they heard with their knowledge of programs and resources, prepare their notes and suggestions, and forward these items to be combined into the Wyoming Rural Development Council's final report to the residents of Washakie County.

Follow-up

Following the written report, the WRDC will return and facilitate a goal/priority setting meeting with the Washakie County.

Executive Summary

The Resource Team for Washakie County would like to extend their thanks for the warm hospitality we received during our visit. It was wonderful to visit both Ten Sleep and Worland and talk to those who came to the different listening sessions; we learned a lot! It was fantastic to hear so many positives for living in Washakie County. The county officials were generous with their time and their dedication assisted with the entire process.

Many of the elements are here for Washakie County to have a successful future – the citizens we met with were enthusiastic about where they live, the strong sense of community and a beautiful area! To achieve the goals it will be important to involve the whole community in trying to find ways to accomplish the goals. With each success it will be like a snow ball going down the hill, the people interested and willing to help will grow. When everyone gets involved, it is not as overwhelming as when only a few are involved. A few celebrations at the successful conclusion of an activity which has involved a large number of citizens will lead to a feeling of accomplishment that will carry over into other activities. Tackle smaller jobs first, or break big jobs into phases; this allows for early successes and a sparks the momentum.

Each individual must decide what it is that they want to do, what kind of project they want to tackle. There are enough tasks for everyone. Each small step, every accomplishment, no matter how limited, is movement in the right direction toward achieving Washakie County's goals. It can be done! There is no problem facing Washakie County that cannot be solved by the people living in the county. It is your choice, your decision, you can do it.

We hope you will find great value in this report and remember any team member is available for you to call to clarify information or provide more information and assistance.

Sincerely,

Kim Porter, Resource Team Leader

Wyoming is the first state approved to license the State of Georgia's Quick Start program. The Wyoming Business Council and the Wyoming Community Colleges are partnering to provide training in:
 - Customer Service
 - Manufacturing
 - Warehousing and Distribution<http://www.wyomingbusiness.org>

State Incentives

- No corporate state income tax.
- No personal state income tax.
- Community Development Block Grants administered by Wyoming Business Council. (www.wyomingbusiness.org)
 - Provides grants to local governments for community and economic development projects.

- Provides convertible loans to grants based on job creation.
- Partnership Challenge Loan Program administered by Wyoming Business Council.
 - Provides low interest loans to community development organizations.
 - Provides gap financing for projects with the Wyoming Business Council participating with a commercial lender.
- Industrial Development Revenue Bonds. Cities and counties may issue tax-exempt bonds to provide financing for manufacturing.

Taxes

- No corporate state income tax.
- No personal state income tax.
- No inventory tax.
- Washakie County has 5% sales and use tax (4% state base tax and a 1% specific purpose county tax.)

- Property taxes. Average tax rate in Washakie County is 7.1817%
Source: Wyoming Department of Revenue, Ad Valorem Division (September 2004)

Tax computation:

Fair Market Value of Property * Level of Assessment (9.5% for Residential and Commercial Property) * Tax Rate

Example: Tax on a commercial facility valued at $1,000,000 is as follows:

$$$1,000,000 \times 0.095 = $95,000 \times 0.071817 = $6823$$

State assesses agricultural lands at 9.5% of agricultural value, residential and commercial at 9.5% and Industrial at 11.5% of fair market value.

kim.porter@wybusiness.org

Introduction: I would like to start off by thanking everyone for their hospitality. We had great listening sessions and fabulous food! I quite enjoyed the tour of the county, it is a beautiful area!

Washakie County has many things going for it, for example the medical services. For a county population of around 8,500 your medical services are awesome! Your county officials are very dedicated to improving Washakie County and listening to what the citizens want.

You face the same challenges many towns and counties are facing in Wyoming – challenges with workforce and housing shortages to name a few. There were concerns about Mineral Royalty distribution, which I'm sure other non-energy counties have the same concerns. The lack of funding is a more universal problem then it may seem.

As you read this report, I would encourage you to take a look at the Ten Sleep Community Assessment and the Worland Community Assessment again. There were many issues back then that came up in this assessment. This reinforces that the issues are important and finding a solution needs to happen. Washakie County has the reports and now the people need to work together to find the solution. It came up as a theme that “we need to start what we finish”. I couldn't agree more! Pick a project and complete it before moving on to another. This is not to say you can't be working on several projects, but make sure you complete the projects you start.

Theme: COMMUNICATION

Challenge: It came out in our session that there is a lack of communication between governmental entities, the two communities and then to the public. This is one item that was a major theme in both the Worland Community Assessment and the Ten Sleep Community Assessment. Some of the suggestions in the Worland Assessment are still valuable and you may want to revisit that report.

Solution: First, everyone involved needs to recognize that this is a problem and has been for quite a while. It is something the citizens of Washakie County want to be better and this may be the easiest, least costly problem to solve. It takes commitment. Different government entities need to recognize their constituents want this and make an effort to get it done. It could be started in several ways. Special district representatives may want to attend county commission meetings along with city council members, or at the very least a representative of one entity should attend the other entities meetings. The county commissioners could attend city council meetings or at least have a representative at them. City Council members and County Commissioners could attend special district meetings or at least send a representative that could report back. Or maybe you may want to try a monthly meeting, alternating between Ten Sleep and Worland every month in which all government entities attend to keep everyone up to date on what's going on and way you can help each other.

To further enhance communications, visit with owner/manager of the Worland newspaper. See if they would be willing to include a monthly/weekly "community" section where meetings could be listed so people know when and where meetings are held. A tentative agenda included would be a good way to give the why. If Worland has a "community event" channel on the television, it is another good way to get the word out. Most radio stations do community events at no cost, one more way to get the word out.

The Communication Department at Northwest College does have resources and can provide workshops and information getting a plan for communication. Mary Randolph of the Wyoming Rural Development Council is another person who may have contacts

Theme: WATER

Challenge: There were concerns about the water supply, especially the aquifer water supplies that Admiral Beverage Company uses and the two towns use for drinking water.

Solution: Good news!!! The Madison formation is a large formation and in your area is free flowing and is one of the biggest in the western U.S. The drought is affecting this somewhat, as well as affecting the ground water. I talked to the Ground Water Division of the State Engineers office and the Water Development Commission and got a ton of information, however repeating it is a challenge because this is not my forte. What I can somewhat intelligently repeat is the State Engineer's office has a permitting protocol and one of the things they watch for is use and they work to ensure there is not overuse. If lack of water becomes a worry, they may not grant as many permits. The Water Development Commission is actively searching for water and they have a project now in Big Horn County that will affect Hot Springs County, Washakie County and Big Horn County and provide a supplemental source of water. I have listed contact information for these offices. I'm sure Admiral Beverage Company has this information but for those inquiring minds, bottle water regulations can be found at <http://www.cfsan.fda.gov/~lrd/bot-h2o.html>.

There are several people you can visit with in each office, so names are given.

Challenge: There were concerns that the West End Irrigation project has not been completed.

Solution: This is a long term project with the BLM and it sounds like it is tied up in federal government red tape. Current Status – a Draft Environmental Impact Statement is in an internal review in Cheyenne and Washington, D.C., and this is where it is held up. With all the oil and gas issues, the West End Irrigation has taken a back seat. Don Ogaard, with the BLM in Worland is working on this to get it through and is getting feedback that this will be moving forward soon. He feels confident that process will be complete no later than the end of this year and that this current stage is the hardest portion of the project.

Resources:

Theme: ENVIRONMENTAL

Challenge: There were people who were interested in a recycling program.

Solution: There is a document on the internet produced by the business council that can be found at <http://www.wyomingbusiness.org/pdf/energy/rd06internet.pdf>. This may be a good resource to find out how other cities are doing this – how they funded it, logistics, etc. Worland does have resources for recycling that can be found in this document. This document has city contacts, recycling contacts, public interest contacts – just about everything you'll need to find out more information. Cheyenne has a good recycling program and that may be a place to start.

Introduction:

Returning to the Big Horn Basin and Washakie County, specifically, was a great experience for me! I have personal and professional ties to the community, and I enjoyed the opportunity to listen to residents from Ten Sleep and Worland about what they feel is important to the sustainability of their county.

The Resource Team was treated to a tour of the county, where we saw first hand the geologic formations and mountain vistas that draw tourists to the area each year. We saw farmers preparing their land for spring planting and learned about the water and irrigation projects being developed. We visited a ranch in Ten Sleep, witnessed the industrial development in Worland, and ate at a different place for every meal. Thanks to Lee Ann Baker and the Washakie County Commissioners we had a guided tour (with notes) on 70 points of interest throughout the county.

During every listening session “the people” were listed as an asset, and I would agree wholeheartedly! The County Commissioners showed their commitment to their constituents by extending the invitation for the assessment and by attending all of the listening sessions. Lee Ann Baker demonstrated her commitment to the county and economic development by also attending all the listening sessions and by doing much of the planning and preparation. And, of course, the process would not have been possible without the participating of the Washakie County citizens, who are about their community.

Theme: INFRASTRUCTURE

Challenges: Adequate drinking water, sewer, streets, county roads.

Solution: Both loan and grant funds are available to rural communities through USDA/Rural Development, with priority given to public entities in areas with less than 5,500 people. Funds can be used to restore deteriorating water supply, or improve, enlarge or modify a water facility or an inadequate waste facility. Preference is given to requests which involve the merging of small facilities and those serving low-income communities. Because of the very high cost, USDA/Rural Development partners with the State of Wyoming to fund projects and to reduce water and waste disposal costs to a reasonable level for facilities serving the most financially needy communities/users of a system. Both Big Horn Regional and Washakie Rural have used state and federal dollars to fund water projects. Other infrastructure needs such as emergency vehicles, streets, telecommunications can also be funded through a variety of USDA/Rural Development programs designed to help rural communities.

Theme: FACILITIES

Challenge: Indoor community pool, new library, new museum, new senior center, community center.

Solution: Washakie County citizens identified the above facilities as desirable for their county. Each of these has the potential of being a multi-million dollar project. Funding all of these structures is likely to require partnerships with lenders, county, city, state, and federal entities and it may require higher property and sales taxes plus a bond issue. Please keep in mind that once these buildings are in place, you must have the financial means to operate and maintain them. There are some incentives and funds available for building environmentally sound, energy efficient buildings that can save on operating costs in the future.

There are grants and loans available through USDA/Rural Development and the State of Wyoming and you may want to consider hiring a professional grant writer to sort through the grant opportunities and complete the paperwork. In addition, please consider becoming a Wyoming Community Foundation Affiliate to tap into the local wealth and philanthropic spirit of Washakie County residents. There are also large numbers of people who can give only a small amount, but collectively it adds up quickly. A Community Foundation also has the benefit of having the citizenry working together for common goals and can create a sense of community pride.

Theme: HOUSING

Challenge: Planning for and obtaining affordable housing for workforce, seniors and assisted living.

Solution: As in previous assessments completed for Worland (2000) and Ten Sleep (2001), housing issues remain a top concern for Washakie County citizens. There are some creative solutions available, but there are no quick fixes. Some Wyoming communities have formed successful non-profit housing authorities to focus on the issues, set priorities, and research funding opportunities. Non-profits can often qualify for federal and state grants not available to an individual or business. A housing assessment may also be a wise investment. It would help the county focus on addressing the greatest need and plan for the future.

Shared equity homeownership and land trusts have become popular ways of dealing with the lack of affordable housing. Shared equity homeownership ensures that the homes remain affordable to lower income households on a long-term basis by restricting the appreciation that the owner can retain, preserving affordable housing in areas where rising prices are forcing lower income households out of the market.

Resources:

In your search for affordable housing for families and seniors, don't overlook local developers, housing authorities, federal and state agencies.

Introduction: Thank you, Washakie County residents, for your wonderful hospitality and the opportunity to visit your county. It was very evident that the county commissioners, Leann Baker, the Washakie Economic Development Director and other committee members took extra steps to make this assessment a success prior to our arrival.

I was impressed by the genuine concerns of participants attending the listening sessions and your honest comments. I enjoyed the opportunity to meet new people and see some familiar faces. You are all very fortunate to live in the communities in Washakie County and its outlying areas. In addition to your diverse business climate, you are surrounded by nature's beauty and outstanding recreational opportunities.

Theme: BIKE/WALKING TRAIL

Challenge: We had several citizens' talk about the need for trails and bike/walking paths in the county.

Solution: Green River has built an extensive system of trails and paths utilizing TEAL Funds from the Wyoming Department of Transportation. The grants are 80/20 grants, requiring a 20% cash match. Green River's paths are for pedestrian, equestrians, and bikers/hikers and get extensive use. WYDOT sends information to towns and counties announcing each funding cycle. WYDOT also has funding for Bike/Walking paths through the Safe Routes to School (SRTS) grant program.

Theme: MEDICAL

Challenge: Healthcare services in Worland and Ten Sleep for older citizen's mirrors health care concerns across the state. Hospital Expansion and the ability to recruit and retain doctors and specialist is a statewide issue.

Solutions: The county has adopted the Washakie County Comprehensive Plan, which outlines the goals and objectives for the county as they relate to the healthcare concerns residents. The comprehensive report will be vital as the county moves forward in planning and implementing strategies to address health care issues in Washakie County.

The Mineral Royalty Grant program has undergone significant rule changes but it continues to be a primary source for funding hospital expansion. Contact the program manager to fully understand the rule changes

93.224, Consolidated Health Centers (Community Health Centers)

EXAMPLES OF FUNDED PROJECTS

Funded projects include efforts to provide primary care services in rural areas, including mental health services, emergency medical services, prenatal care, free clinical services, and preventive health services. In addition, projects designed to increase the number of health professionals available to provide services in rural areas have also been funded. These include upgrading nursing skills from R.N. to N.P. or C.N.S. levels or upgrading the skills of emergency medical services personnel. In addition, projects designed to improve access to rural health services (such as transportation or services on mobile vans) have also been funded. More recently, projects to develop or enhance vertically integrated networks have been supported.

Theme: WORKFORCE DEVELOPMENT

Challenge: To develop the area's workforce in response to the needs of local industry and community.

Solution: The Wyoming Workforce Division has one of the premier workforce development training grant opportunities in the region. It is available to supplement the costs of training new employees or retraining existing employees to meet business demands. Programs include education and training and technical assistance.

Worland is fortunate to have the opportunity to collaborate with Northwest College to provide workforce training at the new community center. I would recommend continued support of the Washakie Economic Development Program, which facilitates numerous programs and events that increase opportunities for successful business and community development throughout the county.

Theme: AGING COMMUNITY

Challenge: Many residents—both youth and seniors alike—expressed some concern that Washakie County is rapidly becoming an older community. On one hand, this is a gift for the county, as seniors have a great wealth of knowledge and experience to share. On the other hand, young families’ with school-aged children sustain communities for the long term. The trick is to try to utilize the full potential of seniors as active, civic leaders and volunteers.

Solutions: Look at some of the programs available through Senior Corps. Senior Corps (a sister program of AmeriCorps) is a national organization that works to help communities and nearly half a million Americans age 55 and older share their time and talents to help their communities. More specifically, they outline programs that can help seniors contribute to community through its Retired and Senior Volunteer Program (RSVP). Organizations can also apply for grant funding to operate RSVP programs. Currently, two communities in Wyoming are operating RSVP programs. Please contact them to see how they are using senior activism and senior time to enrich community.

20 CLUES TO RURAL COMMUNITY SURVIVAL

1. Evidence of Community Pride:

Successful communities are often showplaces of care, attention, history and heritage.

2. Emphasis on Quality in Business and Community Life:

People believe that something worth doing is worth doing right.

3. Willingness to Invest in the Future:

In addition to the brick-and-mortar investments, all decisions are made with an outlook on the future.

4. Participatory Approach to Community Decision Making:

Even the most powerful of opinion leaders seem to work toward building consensus.

5. Cooperative Community Spirit:

The stress is on working together toward a common goal, and the focus is on positive results.

6. Realistic Appraisal of Future Opportunities:

Successful communities have learned how to build on strengths and minimize weaknesses.

7. Awareness of Competitive Positioning:

Local loyalty is emphasized, but thriving communities know who their competitors are and position themselves accordingly.

8. Knowledge of the Physical Environment:

Relative location and available natural resources underscore decision-making.

9. Active Economic Development Program:

There is an organized, public/private approach to economic development.

10. Deliberate Transition of Power to a Younger Generation of Leaders:

People under 40 regularly hold key positions in civic and business affairs.

11. Acceptance of Women in Leadership Roles:

Women are elected officials, plant managers, and entrepreneurial developers.

12. Strong Belief in and Support for Education:

Good schools are the norm and centers of community activity.

13. Problem-Solving Approach to Providing Health Care:

Health care is considered essential, and smart strategies are in place for diverse methods of delivery.

14. Strong Multi-Generational Family Orientation:

The definition of family is broad, and activities include younger as well as older generations.

15. Strong Presence of Traditional Institutions that are Integral to Community Life:

Churches, schools and service clubs are strong influences on community development and social activities.

16. Sound and Well-Maintained Infrastructure:

Leaders work hard to maintain and improve streets, sidewalks, water systems, and sewage facilities.

17. Careful Use of Fiscal Resources:

Frugality is a way of life and expenditures are considered investments in the future.

18. Sophisticated Use of Information Resources:

Leaders access information that is beyond the knowledge base available in the community.

19. Willingness to Seek Help from the Outside:

People seek outside help for community needs, and many compete for government grants and contracts for economic and social programs.

20. Conviction that, in the Long Run, You Have to Do It Yourself:

Thriving rural communities believe their destiny is in their own hands. Making their communities good places is a pro-active assignment, and they willingly accept it.
